Wheeler Stadium Underway

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the Jim Wheeler Memorial Stadium were held Tuesday, March 25th, at the north entrance plaza of the Odle Gymnasium. The thirty-minute event was opened by the Morning Star Singers with a moving musical tribute as they sang "To Live Is Christ," written by Jimmy Wheeler.

The ceremony included remarks by Prof. Phil Loy, representing the Hoosier-Buckeye College Conference; Mr. Jim Krall, representing the student body; Mr. Ted Wright, President of United Bank and the Upland Chamber of Commerce, representing the Upland community; and Mrs. LaRita Boren, speaking for the Board of Trustees.

Mr. John Wheeler, donor of the project, reflected on Jim's life and his vision for Taylor University, bringing tears to many eyes. He spoke of Jim's love for Taylor and its athletics, and of the fitting memorial the stadium will make in Jim's memory.

Concluding the ceremony was the ground-breaking itself, with Mr. Wheeler, Dr. Rediger, Mrs. Boren and Mr. Krall turning over the soil. The chrome-plated shovel used was presented to Taylor by a contractor, and has been used for every ground-breaking ceremony since Wengatz Hall was built in 1965.

The stadium is now under construction and is expected to be completed in time for the fall semester.

John Wheeler, donor, makes a few remarks in dedication of the stadium.

Milo A. Rediger breaks the ground for Taylor's new athletic facility.

Robert V. Gortner

Business Department Head Appointed

Robert V. Gortner has been appointed associate professor and head of the Department of Business & Economics effective July 1, 1980, according to Robert Pitts, vice president for academic affairs.

Gortner, whose home presently is in Summit, NJ, will join the Taylor faculty after having served with Price-Waterhouse, one of the nation's largest accounting firms, for the past ten years. He is a Certified Management Consultant and is the administrative manager of their New York/Metropolitan consulting practice.

Prior to joining Price-Waterhouse, Gortner was plant manager of the Thiokol Chemical Corporation in Trenton, NJ; production manager for Polymer Corporation in Reading, PA; and production manager for Hercules, Inc., in Rocky Hill, NJ.

For a number of years Gortner also has taught industrial management courses at Drexel University, Rochester Institute of Technology, and Union Community College. In his assignment with Price-Waterhouse he has been responsible for the educational functions associated with training their consultant staff.

Among the assets Gortner will bring to the Taylor program is his wide-ranging familiarity with the practical world of business. He will be able to provide students with considerable insight about how to gain employment in the business community as well as to assist them in applying their theoretical training to "real world" situations.

He has earned degrees in commerce and engineering at Drexel University, and in management from the University of Rochester and Drexel.

Mr. and Mrs. Gortner have four children ages 26, 24, 21 and 14. They are members of the New Providence Presbyterian Church in New Jersey.

Hunt Gives Voice Recital

Jeff Hunt

Sunday, April 13th at 3:00 p.m., Jeff Hunt will be giving a voice recital, accompanied by pianist Peggy Yonman. Jeff will perform such pieces as "An Die Ferne Geliebte" ("To My Distant Beloved"), a song cycle by Ludwig Van Beethoven, and three challenging songs for voice and guitar by the 20th century composer, Benjamin Britten. Jeff is a student of Steven Town and has studied with him for two years. You are cordially invited to spend an hour of enrichment and enjoyment as he shares with you in music.

Taylor students and area men and women will have the opportunity to attend the final three free seminars in the series of six entitled, "Women: Balancing Perspectives and Role Requirements." The final three will be in the Taylor University Hodson Dining Commons and will begin tomorrow, April 12th, at 9 a.m.

Sponsored by Taylor University and the Marion branch of the American Association of University Women, in cooperation with Marion College, the seminars began in March on the Marion College campus and will continue in April at Taylor University.

The project was made possible by a $5,000 grant from the Indiana Committee for the Humanities with an in-kind match by AAUW and Taylor. Marion College is the cooperating institution.

Work on the project was begun in the fall of 1978 by Dr. Mildred Chapman, associate professor of English and education, and Marilyn Walker, associate professor of English and journalism. Final funding for the project was granted last June. Dr. Chapman and Prof. Walker are co-directors of the project. More than 100 area educators, and church and community leaders are participating on the panels of the 14 workshops.

The seminars draw from carefully selected glimpses into literature, history, political theory, philosophy, religion, jurisprudence, art criticism, and history, those currents of human experience which will enhance the understanding of women of the many positive options accessible to women today. The primary purpose of the project is to offer women in the area an opportunity to broaden perspectives on the role changes taking place in the home and society today.

Keynote speakers for tomorrow's session will be Robert Cotner, director of university relations, and Dr. Barbara Dickey, associate professor of fine arts. Panel topics tomorrow include "The Female Person," "Home-making Revisited," and "Vocations Outside the Home."

The April 19th session will feature Dr. Frances Ewbank, professor of British literature, and Dr. Alan Winkist, associate professor of European history, as the keynote speakers. Panel topics for that date include "Women and Societal Conflicts," "The Wife and Mother," and "Combination Roles."

Dr. William Fry, chairman of the English department, and Dr. Milo Rediger, president of Taylor and religion scholar, will highlight the final seminar on April 26th. Panel topics for that date include: "The Single Woman in a Family-Oriented Society," "Health Care and Physical Fitness," and "Volunteer Leadership Roles."

No advance registration is necessary. Attendance may be for a single session, a single day, a combination of sessions or days, or all three Saturdays. There is no charge for any of the programs. Lunch is available at the Hodson Commons for $2.50 each Saturday. The sessions run from 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. each Saturday.

Fun in Florida, but...

They're Fading Fast

by Mary Lettrich

I didn't go to Florida. I'm not tan. But don't think I'm mad—I'm not. I didn't have to go out and buy a whole new white, sleeveless wardrobe. And I didn't have to spend all my money on gasoline and Suntan oil. I still have that $1.72 in my savings account left over from interterm.

It rained all week and even snowed here in the midwest, but I didn't mind. I had a chance to do all those things I've been wanting to do for so long. I cleaned out my closet. There were two things hanging in it, and now they're in order.

Actually, I figure I'm too sophisticated to participate in that mass animal migration stuff. And I'm too honest to pretend I'm "working out" with an athletic team. Anyway, I guess beaches would be okay if they didn't have all that sand everywhere. I didn't miss the grit—believe me. What about the relaxation they provide, you ask? HA! All that adrenalin flowing really wears you out. Don't kid yourself.

There's no time for rest on a beach. All those people...and the sharks. By the way, I wasn't really scared at JAWS II, either. It's just that everybody else in the theatre was screaming and I hate to be left out. Besides, I paid three whole dollars for the thing.

Gosh...everybody really looks dark. But it doesn't bother me. I have a good sense of humor. I laugh when people yell, "Hey Whitey!" At least I get attention. Some of my darkest and best friends are saying, "Look, Mary died—there's her ghost!"

Well, don't be so smug. You'll fade...ALL OF YOU! You should have known that setting foot (or face) in the good 'ol Indiana climate would tone you down a few shades right off the bat. I bet the rest of it goes by banquet season, so don't be so proud.

And don't ask me what happened to my nose. I burned it bending too close to a 150 watt light bulb trying to get a tincture of a tan myself. But it doesn't hurt.

Well...just wait 'til next spring!
